

Yorkville Dining Guide for girls

Yorkville, Toronto's original bohemian enclave in the 1960's, has long given way to designer boutiques, high-end hotels, and restaurants to see and be seen. The yearly Toronto International Film Festival (September) has gradually transformed this neighbourhood into the trendiest places in town. Wine and dine in style as cuisine ranges from bistro to sushi or hang out at trendy cafes, perfect for celebrity-spotting.

To start a day in Yorkville, grab a pastry and a coffee from one of the fine cafes such as the Nespresso Boutique Bar. After a delicious coffee, you will be ready to explore the shops. You can also walk down to Bloor Street to find a high-end shopping experience.

If you are in mood for an afternoon picnic, head to the Village of Yorkville Park, where you can stake out a spot for a leisurely picnic lunch on the park's impressive, 650-tonne rock carved out of the Canadian Shield.

Add a desert to your lunch by picking up a delicious gelato from Gelato Simply Italian. You might have to line up for it in the summer.

For dinner, I hope you made a reservation at Café Boulud. Daniel Boulud, widely considered North America's finest French chef, would never disappoint anyone. You will find top dishes with excellent service.

After a lovely dinner, be sure to cap it off with a dessert from Carole's Cheesecake Café or luxury chocolatier MoRoCo.
